NOTED APPROVE

THE QUACK LAW.

From Virginia exchanges it seems that the first case under the Act of the last Legislature, prohibiting parties from practicing medicine, except they were in possession of a diploma from some regularly established college of medicine or had practiced for ten years in the State, is about to be tested as to its constitutionality. On Wednesday Dr. A. B. Spinney of Storey county, was cited to appear under the provisions of the Act. Whether he possesses a diploma or not is not known, at all events he has not yet filed any such document with the proper authorities. In our opinion the law is a good one and should be strictly enforced. Human life should not be placed at the mercy of every quack who chooses to stick up a sign and announce himself as a Doctor of medicine. Any one doing this is but little better than a murderer, and is entitled to no consideration at the hands of the community. The law is a just one and should be strictly enforced. It is bad enough for the community to be subjected to the malpractice of educated ignoramuses, without being compelled to swallow the doses of those who have neither education or brains.

ELECTRIC FLASHES.

Mr. Duncan denies that the Union Bank of London is loser by the suspension of the firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co. From the tenor of late dispatches it seems the firm is a heavy loser by the late fall in wool, and also that it has lost money on railroad securities. The suspension had no effect on the markets of Liverpool and London, but created great consternation in Paris.

Colonel Ross, chief of the Ocherokee Indians, has been assassinated.

Secretary Bristow has had a little difference with Mr. Now, United States Treasurer, and the latter gentleman intimates that if he cannot have his own way in his Department he will resign.

Several heavy business failures are reported from the East.

The strike of mill operatives at Danee, Scotland, has closed up thirty-one mills and thrown out of employment twelve thousand hands.

State Senator Finney, of California, was found dead, shot through the head, Wednesday, near Pescadero. The cause is unknown.

A band of robbers, headed by the notorious Jack Bowen, has been captured at Dixon, Cal.

The stockholders of the Mahogany Mining Company are dissatisfied with their trustees and want a change.

Harvesting has commenced in California, and the explosion of boilers of H & L engines are killing the usual number of inexperienced engineers.

In the House of Commons, the bill to prevent unworthy ships from sailing has passed to its first reading. Great's cotton mills, in Glasgow, Scotland, were destroyed by fire on Wednesday. Loss, $500,000.

AN IRISH CENSUS.—A census of Ireland just taken, shows a total population of 5,412,376, a decrease in ten years of 186,590 or 3.67 per cent. The total area of Ireland is 20,819,947 statute acres, of which 10,071,317 acres are under cultivation, 5,581,000 under pasture, 324,993 under plantation, and 4,213,886 acres are waste, bog and mountain. In the decennial period ending March, 1871, Ireland lost 708,850 inhabitants by emigration.

A QUESTION OF PRIVILEGE.
Of all the railroad legislation ever had, in California, the most notably barefaced and villainous, was that known as the "Plumas Bill." Yet, astonishing as it may appear, the chief beneficiary of that bill heads the Dolly Varden ticket in Sacramento county for Senator. The fact is a sorry comment upon the consistency and honesty of men and parties in this notoriously hypocritical campaign. The Oakland Transcript refreshes the public memory upon the subject and brings Creed Haymond face to face with a most damning record, which he will find most embarrassing to explain. The Transcript says:

"This man talks about thieving corporations! This man, Creed Haymond, who engineered a railroad bill through the Legislature in 1867-8, by which he, and a few more rascals sought to steal nearly half a million dollars from the county of Plumas. It was the very worst and most infamous act of legislation that ever disgraced a State. And Creed Haymond took this infamous highway robbery bill to Governor Haight, and stated to Haight that it was a local bill concerning the county of Plumas alone, which the people of that county were very anxious should become a law, and prevailed upon Haight to sign the bill without knowing its infamous contents. And the bill became a law, and these villains under the law, undertook to rob Plumas county of three hundred thousand dollars which the law made it obligatory upon the county to pay in bonds, even before a stroke of work was done, or a dollar invested by those swindling corporations and worse than thieves. They procured a mandamus to compel the Board of Supervisors of Plumas county to issue the bonds, and the Board resigned rather than perpetrate such a fraud upon the people of the county, and for months the county was without a government. This swindling railroad scheme was called the 'Oroville and Virginia City' Railroad Company, incorporated by this infamous bill, and twenty dollars was all the money paid in by the corporations. It was a deliberate scheme to rob the county of Plumas of three hundred thousand dollars, more or less, and the Courts were called into requisition to assist the thieves in the robbery."

This whole system of fees ought to be abolished. It is an iniquitous system. It enables the unscrupulous official to blackmail and prey upon the citizen; it permits moral leeches and political vampires to drain the life blood from the community. When the officer who arrests, the attorney who prosecutes, and perhaps the justice who tries the case, are dependent upon the conviction of the citizen for a compensation for their services, is it not reasonable to presume that they will strain their official oaths a little in order to convict? The fee system has become, in all well regulated communities, a relic of the past, and it should be done away with.

With great satisfaction it is noted that the Eastern press is becoming more patriotic and more harmonious on the subject of the Centennial. For a time, local rivalries and jealousies prevailed, and the monstrous side of human nature was displayed, in all its deformity. The contemplation of the purpose and objects of the Centennial has driven out those unworthy prejudices, and we believe that every State in the Union will contribute to make the occasion what it should be. The one-hundredth anniversary of our country's declaration of freedom should be observed by a united people, who have buried all former differences, and who can repeat the pledges of their forefathers, to work harmoniously for the common good of the Nation.

The Granger and Silver Star baseball clubs are going to play a series of games at Carson for the championship of the State. The Silver Stars have held the championship for eight years, and expect to make a hard fight before allowing it to pass from their hands.

LAFAYETTE'S STATUS.
During our forefathers' revolutionary times and troubles they had the sympathies of many people in Europe; and in the Colonies the presence and active friendship and aid of quite a number of prominent and able men from abroad. Count Pulaski, Kosciuszko, Baron Stenbock, General Montgomery and many others that might be mentioned. But no foreigner in the service of the Colonies so won the confidence and love of the American people as did the young French Count Lafayette. Leaving his young wife, himself young also, he joined Washington, having left France stealthily, the French King being opposed to the act, and lent his sword, his influence and his fortune to the cause. After a half century he returned to America, on a visit, and was received with most unbounded hospitality, assisted in laying the corner-stone of the Bunker Hill Monument in 1820, and Congress recognized his services by appropriate action.

In the minds of Americans the name of Lafayette will long be associated with that of Washington, who loved him as a son, and whom he venerated as a father. His subsequent life in his native land was one of high position and influence. One of his grandsons is appointed on the French Commission for the Centennial Exposition. But what we started in to say was, that the French Government has presented a statue of this eminent patriot, to be erected in the Central Park, New York. Our people would be delighted to have the statues of many a great man to ornament their parks and museums. But toward no other would their hearts go out in loving remembrance or affection, founded on his biography and the history of our early National life, as toward that of Lafayette. The gift is most gracious, kindly and tasteful. In no other way, probably, could France so fully please and satisfy by a compliment our people.

A PIONEER GONE.—A dispatch from Unionville brings the intelligence of the sudden death of O. M. Evans, who dropped dead in his house of heart disease at that place Wednesday. Mr. Evans was a pioneer of this county, having arrived at Unionville, where he has since resided, in 1802. He at once identified himself with the interests of the community, and by strict attention to business, accumulated considerable property, and was known as one of the most enterprising and energetic citizens of the county. He took an active part in local politics, and always labored for the interests of the town in which he resided. Last Fall he experienced the first symptoms of the disease which caused his death, and since that time his health has been impaired. His death has cast a gloom over the community, and is a severe loss to Unionville. He leaves a wife and three children, the oldest of which, a young woman of nineteen, has been for some time past attending school in California. His remains will probably be taken to Marysville for interment.—Silver State.

ON HIS WILKES.—On Thursday night a small fight was fought in one of the saloons on Front street and the best man was arrested in the morning and fined six dollars and costs. The best man was one Jim Burgo and evidently thought he was getting off cheap, for during the forenoon he attacked "Fatty," a villain from a nearby house on the back street, and would have come out of the fight second best if there had been no interference. In a few minutes, however, he improved a favorable opportunity and struck "Fatty" in the neck while they were both standing quietly at the bar, and laid him out. "Fatty" fell, his head striking an iron foot-rest and he lay like one breathing his last. His head was raised up and bathed, and during the day he appeared on the street again, wearing a dejected countenance. There appeared to be no provocation at all for the assault, and thus far Burgo has been allowed to go his way unmolested.—Truckee Register.

Gold closed Wednesday in New York at 13 1/4 @ 13 1/2.

The coin produced at the Carson Mint during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1875, amounts to $4,288,053, nearly half of which was gold. Besides this, silver bars to the value of over $1,000,000 were turned out, making the total value of the year's product $5,287,592 02.
